As 90-year-old Winston Churchill barely clings to life in January 1965, Great Britain and the world prepare for the most significant funeral of the century. The long-planned grand farewell for the great man (code name: Operation Hope Not) will include the presence of a "who's who" list of world leaders, all vying for the attention of the 350 million people who will watch it all via the relatively new Tel-Star satellite technology.

But one world leader has decided not to go to London for the funeral of Sir Winston. Why would the President of the United States, Lyndon B. Johnson, a consummate and ego-driven politician, who has just been inaugurated for his own term, following a landslide election victory the previous November, choose to stay home instead of taking the chance to make his presence known as the leader of the free world? And why would the president not send his new vice president, Hubert Humphrey, to the funeral? And why would the Secretaries of Defense and State eventually travel to London as part of the "official" US delegation, only to avoid the actual service at historic St. Paul's Church?

With these very true historical facts as a backdrop, we take a journey through the "looking glass" into a murky world of shadows, mystery, and intrigue. America and the world had not yet fully recovered from the assassination of Johnson's presidential predecessor, John F. Kennedy. Yet, in a way that seems to connect back to that awful moment in November 1963, there are rumors of another vast conspiracy, one involving a terrorist attack connected to Churchill's funeral, at the moment more when than 100 world leaders will be gathered together in one confined place.
